Partnership with the Los Angeles Angels

Notice of Contract Agreement

We have announced that our company has reached a partnership agreement with Major League Baseball's Los Angeles Angels. Shohei Ohtani joins the Angels this season, and the media is taking a lot of notice—not only in Japan, but also in the United States. It is also expected that there will be many news reports about MLB challenge of Ohtani, the two-way player and Japan's Babe Ruth, whose success is expected. Through our partnership with the Los Angeles Angels, we expect our brand establishment and awareness to be improved in both Japan and the U.S.

Main contents of the partnership agreement

- The Funai logo will be seen alongside the Angels logo on the media backdrop when the players and coaches are interviewed by the media. Funai will be the exclusive advertiser on the media backdrop.
- At Angel Stadium, home of the Angels, Funai will be advertised behind home plate during one half inning per game. When Ohtani is the starting pitcher it will be displayed in the top half of an inning during the first five innings of the game. When Ohtani starts at DH, it will be displayed in the bottom half of an inning.
- Funai will also be advertised behind home plate in Tempe, Arizona, during Angels Spring Training games. When Ohtani is the starting pitcher it will be displayed in the top of two innings during the first five innings of the game. When Ohtani starts at DH, it will be displayed in the bottom half of two innings.
- There will be a press conference with Ohtani as he marks the beginning of his MLB career on February 14 at 3pm (open at 2:45pm), the first day of Angels Spring Training.

Based on this partnership agreement, we will expand public relations activities in the United States.
